FOOD DICTATOR HOOVER
CRITICIZED BY SENATORS
AT RELIEF BILL HEARING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Defense of Herbert Hoover against the charge that he plotted to aid and protect the American packing interests plunged the Senate into an angry debate over the $100,000,000 famine food bill. Placing before the Senate Hoover's denial, Senator Hitchcock, Neb. summed up reasons in Hoover's behalf.

"If Hoover is aiding or protecting anybody it is the small live stock farmer," said Hitchcock. "He has done nothing wrong and yet he is being stabbed in the back by his enemies on this floor." Replying to Senator Borah's charge that packers were enabled to make inordinate profits because of the system Hoover built up as food administrator, Hitchcock declared "the profits would have been much greater had Hoover not been in charge."

"Doesn't the Senator say the profits were inordinate," asked Borah.

"I repeat," said Hitchcock, "that they would have been much higher had Hoover not been in charge. Hitchcock declared Hoover would come out completely vindicated. "Any man who would run against Hoover for President would poll a much smaller vote," said Hitchcock.

"I don't deny that any Senator would be able to raise a much smaller campaign fund," said Borah. Borah declared he had never attacked Hoover's personal integrity but the system he built up. "I do not favor giving $100,000,000 to a man who built up such a system," said Borah.

PARIS, Jan. 23—Herbert Hoover today flatly denied the charges made in the United States Senate during the Senate's battle over the $100,000,000 food bill that he was working in the interest of the American packing industry. "I received word of the Senate's accusation just at the same time I received notice that Swift & Co. had charged me with being instrumental in cutting down their profits by ten million dollars last year. I do not believe the packers would want a wide circle of such friends."

AMERICA WILL GET GERMAN SHIPS

By Robert J. Bender

PARIS, Jan. 23—The United States will get the use of the great north German Lloyd liners for the repatriation of American troops, it was learned today. (This refers to such liners in German ports. Those in the American ports were seized when the United States entered the war.) The Germans will be paid the usual scale for the use of these vessels. Their property right will not be affected and the vessels will return to them when peace is signed. (Announcement was made recently that Great Britain was paid at the rate of $50 for each American soldier transported to France).

WILSON TO COME HOME FEBRUARY 15th

LONDON, Jan. 23—A Central News dispatch from Paris today said it has been definitely learned that President Wilson will return to America on February 15.

This is the day generally agreed upon in unofficial advices.

DIVIDED ON RUSSIAN RECOGNITION

PARIS, Jan. 23—Paris newspapers today took widely different views of the action of the supreme war council in according partial recognition to the Russian Soviet government.

"President Wilson's idea was great and bold. The future will prove whether it is practical and fruitful. It will bring great joy to the Socialists and Democrats of the world when they read Wilson's proposal," the Humanite declared. (This paper exclusively published the Foreign Secretary's flat refusal of the Allies' proposal to recognize the Bolsheviks.) "It is especially useful to the League of Nations," another newspaper declared.

GERMANS INSULT "OLD GLORY" BY COMBINING IT WITH KAISER'S IRON CROSS

By Webb Miller

American headquarters in Germany, Jan. 23—The American flag has been submitted to insult. Coblenz dealers have been found to sell watch fobs made of iron crossed with a replica of the American flag. The American officers have confiscated all of this stock and are seeking the manufacturer. All retailers have been arrested. A wide spread rumor throughout Germany in the occupied territory is to the effect that Coblenz girls who fraternized with American troops were forced to polish their shoes. It has developed that a German had opened a shoe shining parlor and employed girls. Inasmuch as there are no public shoe shining parlors in Europe the town-people believed the girls were being punished.

To supply parts which were missing from artillery accepted as part of the quota under the armistice terms the British government has ordered the Kiupp works to supply the parts.

RED CROSS SMOKE
SAVED HIS LIFE

There's a private in the 165th Infantry—the old 69th of New York—who claims that his life was saved by a box of cigarettes, provided by the American Red Cross. He is Edgar McGee, of Company L, an Indian whose home is Williston, Oklahoma, and who has attended Armstrong Academy and Haskell Institute.

"I know a little about shells and more about cigarettes," said Private McGee, as he sat up in bed at American Red Cross military hospital No. 5, in Paris, smoking one of a never-ending chain of tree smokes. "And at that, I had fifty five days of shell-fire. We helped put the Prussian Guards out of the little old town of St. Georges you know, and we had to do it with the bayonet."

"Here's where my life and the Red Cross cigarettes come in. I had been sent back to get a box of cigarettes that the Red Cross had given us and was returning with the box on my right shoulder when a shell dropped fifteen feet from me. The first thing I knew there were cigarettes all over the landscape, with me in the middle of them. One piece of shell that would have got my head if it hadn't hit the box, damaged the cigarettes badly. A second piece caught me in the left hip. The shell fell to the right of me and how a piece ever got around to hit me on the left side I haven't been able to figure out. But no matter how it did I am certainly strong for the Red Cross."

RATIFICATION OF DRY
AMENDMENT BEGUN

HARRISBURG, PA., Jan. 22—The legislature took initial steps toward definite action on the national prohibition amendment here today.

Representative Vukerman, of Allegheny, introduced a bill in the house ratifying the amendment, while the secretary of the commonwealth presented a certified copy of the amendment before the senate. Definite action will likely be taken on the matter at the opening of the session next week. In the dry tank, there is an atmosphere of optimism. The dry leaders are urging immediate action and feel confident now that the required number of states have already ratified the amendment there is no other avenue open to the legislature of Pennsylvania.

Bills by the score followed the announcement of the standing senate committees. Among the most important bills was one introduced by Senator Eyre, of Chester, providing for the abolition of the non-partisan election of state judges. Another bill pertaining to election changes was introduced by the same senator and provided for return of party conventions for the selection of candidates for state and national offices.

A bill providing for the establishment of a state boxing commission and limited contests to ten rounds was introduced by Senator Crow, of Fayette county.

Senator Horace Shantz, of Lehigh, introduced a bill providing for monthly instalments of liquor licenses in view of the fact that the war time prohibition will become effective July 1.

A group of women at a luncheon following this a health and Child Welfare exhibit of a week's duration was held in Lancaster addressed by prominent physicians. A small child's well-known exhibit easily portable was then secured and has been sent to the rural districts from school to school, accompanied by volunteer women to interpret it to the time it is distributed to the next subject.

Interpretation of the subject will be given at the High School Auditorium on the subject of Child Welfare and the importance of Child Welfare on a high level.

VIVID DESCRIPTION
OF WAR'S HORRORS

First Lieutenant Daniel K. ("Ted") Flynn has written another of his interesting letters to his mother. This message was written before Christmas. Lieutenant Flynn writes from a base hospital in France and is convalescent after a brief illness of influenza.

Meanwhile the regiment with which he served "through thick and thin, through rain and snow and sunshine" is marching into the land of the vanquished Hun.

The letter follows:

Dearest Mother:

I have about recovered from my attack of the "flu" and since being here in the hospital many wonderful things have happened the most wonderful of all being victory. Pershing's first army, in which we have played our humble part, was like a huge sledge against the Hun and drove him back in wild and hopeless disorder.

Seems Like a Miracle

It seems impossible that such a miracle could have happened. Of course we knew that we were punishing the Germans in terrible fashion. Nothing has been seen since the war began like the terrific cannon fire the Allies have been using. Nothing could live in its path. Since July 18th there has been no rest for the Hun. He has been smashed and hammered until his shattered legion was in a state of chaos, without plan or organization left.

One German officer taken by a volunteer of the information that "There is no use of fighting against the Americans. They do not know when to quit and we have never seen such daring, such courage."

Thus we see the product of a free nation welded into soldiers in three or four months, with the unstinted praise of the supposedly greatest trained soldiers in the world. The reason for this is easily understood, for somehow or other the American soldier is an independent thinking machine.

Individuality Counts Here

Here, for instance, is a corporal in the front line. He spots a machine gun manned by Germans, two hundred yards out in front—say behind a clump of bushes. He doesn't report this to his lieutenant, but taking two or three men with him he will crawl out like a snake on his belly and the first thing the German knows is that he is surrounded and captured.

It is a curious thing, but it is true, that all along our front line I do not know when we sail for that sweetest of all places—home—but I know the day will be a glorious one. My regiment is tramping over hill and dale to Germany. I am exceedingly sorry not to be with them. It is the very first time I have been away since February, through thick and thin, through rain and snow and sunshine, always somewhere trying to have them march away with victory ours is not the happiest thought in the world.

We all feel now that we have a good opportunity of seeing home again but up in the line we were afraid to hope for all around us men were dying and no one knew but that the wine of the next oncoming shell was his own death-knell-sounding. Now that it is over and we are relaxed and becoming normal humans, to look back on the past months is to shudder and to wonder if you are really living or if you were "bumped off" with so many you knew in those black, dreary weeks of bloodshed.

I know that no one could have gotten through without God's guiding hand, for death and destruction stalked everywhere. Miles back of the front line great shells splashed their deadly splinters along the beautiful French roads, often-times catching columns of troops coming forward to battle, scattering and killing many of them. Always at night these roads were shelled by the Hun. Sometimes they were shelled by motor trucks, knocking them into a thousand pieces. Marching on in the night we would sometimes hear the drone of an airplane, the noise coming with time.

Suddenly the plane is apparent, just overhead. (The German planes have a distinct hum quite easily distinguishable from the hum of all the Allied motors.) Our muscles and nerves are drawn tense—not a sound is heard in the column of men, save the plodding of our feet on the road.

Suddenly there is a tremendous crash. The very world reels and rocks from the concussion. Then another bomb is let loose and the deafening boom reaches for the sky.

CLEARFIELD WINTERS
A COMPARISON

We suppose it is alright for our Clearfield people to go to Florida to spend the winter and as they are all spending their own money to do so, it is not up to any of us poor devil newspaper scribes to care a hoot about it. At the same time we are forced to get in a word or two anyhow. The fellow who went to Florida this year has nothing on those of us who are lucky enough or poor enough to have to stay at home. We certainly have experienced balmy sunny weather thus far, and to go Florida one better we had a touch or two of zero to add a dash of paprika to existence where you can ordinarily count on every kind of weather every fifteen minutes, especially when the weather man is out of sorts.

But to get back to the present mild winter. Our Celtic friend Tim Minahan showed us a fine big caterpillar he found quietly strolling down Market street yesterday enjoying the afternoon sun.

We had a letter from John E. Rouzeau, of Girard township this morning in which he comments on the extraordinary winter weather and said he was out in the woods yesterday gathering chestnuts. He said he believed that was the first time in half a year that chestnuts were gathered on January 22nd, in Clearfield county.

Last year's record was just the opposite as the following will show.

One year ago on Monday the thermometer registered 15 degrees below, while one year ago Tuesday it was 5 below and a year ago yesterday it was zero. The weather moderated somewhat after this period and it started in to snow. On January 28th the railroads of the country were completely blocked for over a day. This is greatly in contrast to the weather of the past three or four days, when the sun has been shining brightly, causing thermometers to range around 40 and 45 degrees, mosquitoes are buzzing around and birds are swelling.

During last winter there were 45 days on which the thermometer in the morning registered below zero. There have been some below zero mornings this winter, but there has not been one real cold spell. This is probably the annual January thaw that is being experienced at the present time, but there is nothing to show, except the roads, and they were not badly frozen. February generally furnishes some very cold weather and it is probable that there will be a cold snap or two during that month. But it is certain that this section is not going to experience a whole lot of winter weather.

It was just one year ago on Monday that fuelless Mondays were inaugurated and continued for several weeks.

MRS. WILLIAM MICHAELS

Mrs. William Michaels died at her home in Bloom township at the age of 36 years, of pneumonia following the influenza. She was buried in Greenville cemetery on Tuesday along with her twin babies which died at birth. Rev. Clever officiated. She leaves to mourn her death a husband and seven children. Also four step children, three brothers and three sisters. The Michaels home is a and one as the seven children are afflicted with the influenza.

Dangerous to Morale

Nothing is so dangerous to the morale of troops as air raids. You feel, and you are, so utterly helpless against them.

Yes we are thankful it is all over with. We often say that hell could hold no terror for the men who have been here.

I want you all to come and meet me, for New York will go wild when the 165th infantry marches up Fifth avenue and our old treasured flag again feels the throbs of the millions that always line the street when it passes.

Before I close I want to say that this hospital in which I have been in charge of a California unit. I have never been treated better. Of course, it is the Red Cross. My best wishes will always be with it and I will ever remember the magnificent work the Red Cross has done for us all.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas.

TED

Lieut. Flynn is the son of Hon. James Flynn, of Charleston, W. Va., a former well known Clearfield county lumber man and the host of friends of this old family in our county will take more than a passing notice of this excellent description of what the doughboys found "over there"—Ed.

GOVERNOR SPROUL'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS

QUESTIONS OF INCOME

Pennsylvania is almost alone among all of the States in that it levies no tax for State purposes upon real estate, but leaves that handiest source of public income intact for the needs of its municipal subdivisions. It is to be hoped that this condition may never be disturbed, as realty, especially as represented by our farms and homes, already bear more than its share of the burdens of taxation. Probably the most equitable tax, considering all of things, is the income tax, and I should favor the imposition of a light levy upon personal and corporate incomes as a means of lightening the revenues of the State, were it not for the limitations in our present constitution which would prevent the grading of such taxes, or the exemption of small incomes. This same provision prevents the equitable operation of the present inheritance tax. An amendment to the constitution is now before the Legislature which will permit of the classification and grading of subjects of taxation, and, if it should be favorably acted upon and then approved by the electors, important changes may be made in our tax laws by the next Legislature.

It would seem that the most available source of revenue now in sight is to be found in a change in the law which would provide for a return to the State of a portion of the personal property tax. Until a few years ago the State directed the collection of this tax and a percentage of the total sum received by the county treasurers was paid into the State Treasury. Generous Legislatures at various times when there were ample balances in the State Treasury, gave increasing shares of this tax to the counties and finally wiped out the State's share in it altogether, although it is still billed as a State tax. In many of the counties little effort is made to assess or collect this tax, and carelessness in filing returns and in making payments is tolerated. If the State, through the Auditor General's office, should be authorized to collect this large item of revenue in the same manner that corporation and other State taxes are collected, with the provision that one-half of the amount realized should belong to the State and the other half to the counties, the State's income would be materially increased. Through the operation of a thorough system of collection the counties should receive as much or almost as much as they now gain from this direction. This plan, with the additional revenue, which should come to us this year from the gross earnings tax upon certain of our corporations, from the inheritance taxes and from an increase in the automobile license, together with the particularly efficient management of the Department of the Auditor General, should provide the revenue that we shall be likely to need for the present.

SIMPLIFYING OUR GOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATION

The development of our public activities has been so rapid since the construction of our present form of government, that our administrative departments have been attached to the general frame without much regard to symmetrical structure or efficient organization. Many of these departments overlap one another in their supposed functions, with the result that there is a lack of system and co-ordination and a duplication of effort which is extravagant and uneconomical. There is a great deal of lost motion in the operation of the State government and there is great opportunity for saving money and getting better results by consolidating and reorganizing some of the departments. I have some plans in mind the details of which will be communicated to the Legislature when a complete study has been made. Among those departments which I have particularly in mind are the Agricultural Department, which should be made more direct in its administration and brought closer to the people. Food production is going to be a more important element in our public affairs in the next few years than it has ever been, and Pennsylvania, with the best markets in the world, is fortunately also one of the most favored agricultural States and should meet more completely its own requirements. There is a wonderful field for helpful co-operation with our farmers.

The Forestry, Game, Fisheries and Water Supply Departments, with activities naturally co-related, should be combined into

The Pneumonia of INFLUENZA

Deadly Pneumonia Often Follows Common Chest Cough

This pneumonia which usually very severe may disappear in a night under proper treatment and the best way for a person afflicted with influenza to avoid pneumonia is to go to bed at once and stay there until the physician permits you to get up. While in bed the back, throat and chest should be liberally coated with Eucalypti and Eucalypti ointment to insure the free exit of mucus from the chest. Allow a little to melt in your mouth three or four times daily. It is very important to keep the chest warm and to keep the inflamed membrane and to keep the chest cavity clear of phlegm.

IMPORTANT—In case of a severe attack of pneumonia, it is very important to keep the chest warm and to keep the chest cavity clear of phlegm. The public are warned against accepting substitute and inferior goods as all goods are supplied and your money will be well spent in buying the best.

one Department of Conservation, with each of the bureaus representing the present departments co-ordinating and co-operating under direct control.

The Department of State Police should be a real crime preventing and criminal detecting agency, with well-equipped headquarters at the capital, which would have complete records of all felonies, and a force of experts who could be called to the assistance of the peace officers of every county in the State. There is little co-operation between the counties in police matters and, with the incomplete police organization and changing officials in many of the counties, there is no continuing authority charged with the apprehension of criminals and the prevention of crime. The Department of State Police should include the other police or corrective agencies of the State which do not require an especially technical force, and the Fire Marshall's work might well be merged with it. I also believe that the game and fish protective force should be a part of the State Constabulary and that men should be selected for this work who could qualify for service in the police in time of necessity.

The Department of Health, although it is already a very cumbersome organization and might be simplified, should include the State Quarantine Service, if, indeed, this service is necessary in view of the provisions of the Federal Government for the same purpose.

AN IMPORTANT WORK

Perhaps in no department of the State government has there been a greater increase in work and expense than in the Department of Labor and Industry. There appears to be much confusion, much duplication of effort and much that is superfluous and unnecessary in this department. Not that I would minimize its importance, but I feel that there is much that can be dispensed with here which would give an opportunity for increasing its work in lines of greater importance. For instance, I believe the Commissioner of Labor and Industry should have broader powers in relation to housing problems. Our larger communities can take care of themselves in these matters, but throughout the State here are places where people are living in frightfully unsanitary homes, surrounded by conditions which make for bad health and bad citizenship. Especially is this true in some industrial settlements where families are compelled, in order to be near their employment, to live in places which are unfit for human habitation. We ought to have the power to help in this very important matter.

This department should also be able to give attention more completely to helping our foreign-born. Twenty per cent. of foreign immigration comes to Pennsylvania. When we entered the war, people who did not know them looked on this great body of foreign-born people as a menace. Their mistake is now apparent, for we have found in the hearts of the foreign-born an unselfish depth of patriotism, keen appreciation of the principles involved in the war and a great eagerness to take this first opportunity to prove their adoption to their adopted country. Their sons have gone in great numbers into the army and navy. They have organized among themselves and bought Liberty Bonds in surprising amounts, and in mines, mills and factory, they have worked patriotically and faithfully in war industries. As an example of patriotic work they have done throughout the Commonwealth, I may cite the fact that twenty different races organized Philadelphia and took sixty millions of Third and Fourth Liberty Bonds. We, who are native-born, have been slow to recognize the great patriotic and industrial asset Pennsylvania has in her foreign-born people. Without them, we could not have developed our resources. They have acquired homes, their children fill our public schools, their industry, their thrift, their devotion to American principles, when properly led, unite to make them a great asset in the future of our State. We propose, during this administration, that the State of Pennsylvania shall get into closer touch with its foreign-born, that these people may realize that the State is their friend, that they are a part of it, and that it cherishes them and will protect them from those who would impose upon them or exploit them.

OUR CITY PROBLEMS

Our greatest city needs assistance in the way of developing and regulating legislation. Many minds are now working upon her problem and many divergent views are expressed. There seems to be general agreement, however, upon the essential points of a greater degree of home rule within the limitations of the present constitution, a better fiscal policy, a reduced legislative session, the removal of the forces of public safety from partisan politics. It is to be hoped that the various elements in the situation may get together and that Philadelphia may secure some much-needed changes in her administrative organization.

The mine-cave situation in Scranton and thereabouts is still menacing and if an effective and satisfactory agreement cannot be reached that will protect this splendid city and relieve her inhabitants from the blight of this incubus upon the development of their community, the power of the State must not be withheld in remedying an intolerable situation.

Fortunate in having access to the three principal systems of water-borne commerce, Pennsylvania has not been so forward-looking as she might have been in laying plans for the development of her ports on the Delaware, her lake harbor at Erie and her outlet in the Pittsburgh district to the Mississippi Valley. May we not take some definite steps to assist in making practical improvements in all of these directions? With the demands of the national government upon our taxing powers, however, these enterprises seem more than ever to be rightfully a concern of the nation.

Philadelphia draws much of her trade and finds an outlet for her increasing population in the section of the State of New Jersey close at hand. It is remarkable that a bridge or tunnel has not long since connected the great city with the environs separated from it by a river but one-half mile wide. The State of New Jersey has authorized a participation in the building of a bridge and has provided a method for raising the necessary funds to finance one-half of the cost. We should meet this situation promptly and, in conjunction with the city of Philadelphia, should get ready to join in the undertaking. We can spare enough out of our current revenues to bear the State's proportion in what might be made a great memorial structure in honor of our brave soldiers and sailors.

A STATE ART JURY

There will undoubtedly be a general movement in our communities to erect permanent memorials to our heroes of the war. I trust that these memorials may be useful and beautiful. Many of the monuments which have been built at our county seats and elsewhere in commemoration of the valorous deeds of the defenders of the Union are inartistic and inappropriate. We ought to take steps now to prevent a repetition of this mistake. An Art Commission to which should be submitted designs for monuments and public structures, including bridges and school houses, would be a desirable addition to our organization, and should raise the whole tone of public architecture in Pennsylvania. It costs no more to have good-looking structures in our public places and the effect upon the community of artistic and well-designed buildings and memorials must be measurably good.

A COUNCIL OF PUBLIC WELFARE

The Council of National Defense and Committee of Public Safety should be continued in a modified form to help in meeting

the problems of peace. The Council of National Defense won the recommendation of the officials at Washington and was ranked as the best and most efficient organization of the kind in the whole country. It has developed and given to the State many useful agencies and has brought into public life many citizens who will add greatly to our force of trained public servants. These men and women should not be allowed to become disorganized and their usefulness lost to the State. The body should be continued as a Council of Public Welfare, and some of the lines of duty which it has been handling as war measures should be continued as a Council of Public Welfare, and some of the lines of duty which it has been handling as war measures should be continued as serviceable adjuncts to the State government in times of peace. Certain of the agricultural, educational and conservation plans of the Council should be continued and enlarged, and the excellent system of volunteer police which has brought a fine body of citizens into touch with the authorities throughout the State, should be provided for as a permanent body.

MILITARY REORGANIZATION

In the absence of definite action by the United States Government for the re-establishment and reorganization of the army, it is difficult to plan for the military establishment of the State. The Pennsylvania Reserve Militia, however, is well organized and well-equipped and is a credit to the State, its officers and its membership. This organization should be strengthened and merged with the National Guard when we come to re-establish that organization. The wonderful record of our Pennsylvania National Guard units in the greatest battles in history, is source of pride to every citizen of the State. The reorganization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania must be undertaken as early as possible and the splendid traditions of that historic force preserved for the glory of the State. Our discharged soldiers and former guardsmen must be invited to return to the service and every effort made to again build up our force of trained citizen soldiery.

INFORMATION WANTED

Curwensville, Pa., Jan. 22, 1918.
Editor The Progress:
I saw an article in Saturday's Progress which severely criticized the State Game Commission and Dr. Kallfus, the secretary. It was alleged in this statement that the commission was using the money of the hunter's license fund to buy li- cense for their game wardens, etc. I also that the wild turkeys which our county by the game commission had been killed by the game wardens.

This is a very serious charge or accusation and should not be allowed to go unchallenged by the hunters of the county and particularly Clearfield county. I have hunted these Clearfield county hills with dog and gun for the past forty years and I want to say that there are more deer on the mountains than there were thirty years ago. I believe this to be due to the wise policy and efforts of the State Game commission and from what I knew of the work of Secretary Dr. Kallfus and his wardens they should be commended instead of condemned by an anonymous writer.

What we want in all cases where public officials or servants are assaulted is facts and then more facts. If "Old Hunter" knows what he is talking about (and I don't think he does) let him get away from innuendoes and wharfauses and tell the story. If the

"BEFORE AND AFTER TAKING" A LESSON IN NEAR EAST RELIEF

Amena, one of the 400,000 orphans in the Near East, was wandering in the streets of her ruined city in the tattered boy's clothing of the "before taking" picture when she was picked up by a relief worker. She has been placed in one of the orphanages being put up for the thousands of fatherless, motherless, friendless children by the American Committee for Relief in the Near East. Amena's father was tied to the tail of a horse and dragged to death and the little daughter was left to pick up her food, literally from the street, and to find some nook between buildings where she might sleep. From this life of hiding and doubtless stealing, whenever she could, there probably came the expression of precocious cunning in the first picture. The influence of love and kindness with which she has come in contact have brought back the natural childish charm of the "after taking" picture. It is not to be imagined that Amena's case is a rare one or even that every such child can be taken to care and shelter as soon as discovered. Too often the relief worker must look the other way.

THE MOST DANGEROUS OF ALL DISEASES

No organs of the human body are so important to health and long life as the kidneys. When they slow up and commence to lag in their duties, look out! Danger is in sight. Find out what the trouble is—without delay. Whenever you feel nervous, weak, dizzy, suffer from sleeplessness, or have pains in the back, wake up at once. Your kidneys need help. These are signs to warn you that your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. They are only half doing their work and are allowing impurities to accumulate and be converted into uric acid and other poisons, which are causing you distress and will destroy you unless they are driven from your system. BAD COUGH FOR SIX YEARS. WOULD CATCH COLD EASILY

Mr. Townsend tried all kinds of treatments. Finally found the right one.

"For six years I had a bad cough, caused by catarrh. When I would catch cold, I coughed most of the night. I would catch cold easily. I tried all kinds of medicine, and spent one winter in Florida, but my cough didn't get any better."

"My wife urged me to try Milks Emulsion. I bought a bottle to please her.
The result was, after taking a few bottles, my cough stopped and my catarrh is a great deal better. I very seldom catch cold now. I feel better. I am glad to say that I am well."

"The person who catches cold easily is seldom well. Catarrh, coughs and other ailments seem to be a part of his life.
The cause is usually deep seated.
The surest way to obtain quick and positive relief is to build up and strengthen the whole system."

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritious food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to run-down nervous people, and it has produced amazing results in many cases of asthma, chronic bronchitis, and tuberculosis of the lungs.
Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made,
and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. A truly wonderful medicine for weak, sickly children.
No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terro Haute, Ind. Sold and guaranteed by Stewarts Drug Store.

friends at present. He is employed

CHARLES KINGSLEY CENTENARY

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The memory of Charles Kingsley, the preacher-novelist, who died on this date in 1875, is to be signally honored next June, on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of his birth. To the general public the name of Kingsley is perhaps best known as that of the author of "Westward Ho!" But in his day he was celebrated as a preacher of socialistic doctrine and an ardent advocate of social reforms, many of which have since become accomplished facts.

Kingsley was born in Devonshire
and was the son of a country parson.
He is said to have preached his first sermon when he was four years old,
and his mother kept it as a curiosity.
In this young Charles said:

"Nobody can tell how the devil can be chained in hell. If humanity, honesty and good religion fade we can to a certainty get them back by being good again. Religion is reading good books, doing good actions and not telling lies and not speaking evil and not calling your brother a fool."

Six months after graduating at Cambridge Kingsley was settled as curate at Eversley, which place continued to be his home during the remainder of his life. In working at Eversley Mr. Kingsley began to realize the need of a Christian socialism in England. With this decision he took his place in English life as a parson, a politician, an author and a strenuous worker to save souls.

He wrote for the working man under the title of "Parson Lot," and told him that he must free himself from his own wicked inclinations before he could pass from under the cruel power of bad social conditions. His strongest stories dealing with the subject of socialism in its highest sense are "Yeast" and "Alton Locke."

Kingsley was made canon of Westminster shortly before his death, and is buried in the famous abbey. Once when a friend wished him a long life Kingsley said: "Ask for me anything but that. Let us live hard, work hard, go a good pace and get to our journey's end as soon as possible."

The eldest son of the author had emigrated to America and had become successful as an engineer in Colorado.
In his later years Charles Kingsley crossed the Atlantic to visit his son and to see the country. He was worn and weary from overwork and the strain of his literary labors, so that his journey was almost too much for him. He was well received in the United States and always cherished a high regard for that country and its people.

On the side of a range of hills and overlooking Biddeford Bay now stands the town of "Westward Ho" which was named for Kingsley's book that

INTEREST CONTINUES TO GROW

The evangelistic meeting at the Baptist church last evening was about the strongest and best attended session of the series and the effect of Rev. Smith's "old time gospel" sermons is reaching every class of society in our community. The Reverend gentleman is a finished orator and is striking sledge-hammer blows against the sin of careless living in his nightly sermons.

He took for his subject last night
"The Lost Christ." It was a real message to backsliders and Rev.
Smith left nothing to the imagination of his hearers. He was listened to with rapt attention and his message is bound to bear good fruit.

Everybody is invited to these nightly services.

Mrs. A. C. Tubbs entertained B. J.

being Mr. Tubbs' birthday, she had celebrate the evening. Delicious refreshments were served.

FOOD DICTATOR HOOVER CRITICIZED BY SENATORS AT RELIEF BILL HEARING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Defense of Herbert Hoover against the charge that he plotted to aid and protect the American packing interests plunged the Senate into an angry debate over the $100,000,000 famine food bill. Placing before the Senate Hoover's denial, Senator Hitchcock, Neb. summed up reasons in Hoover's behalf.

"If Hoover is aiding or protecting anybody it is the small live stock farmer," said Hitchcock. "He has done nothing wrong and yet he is being stabbed in the back by his enemies on this floor." Replying to Senator Borah's charge that packers were enabled to make inordinate profits because of the system Hoover built up as food administrator, Hitchcock declared "the profits would have been much greater had Hoover not been in charge."

"Doesn't the Senator say the profits were inordinate," asked Borah.

"I repeat," said Hitchcock, "that they would have been much higher had Hoover not been in charge. Hitchcock declared Hoover would come out completely vindicated. "Any man who would run against Hoover for President would poll a much smaller vote," said Hitchcock.

"I don't deny that any Senator would be able to raise a much smaller campaign fund," said Borah. Borah declared he had never attacked Hoover's personal integrity but the system he built up. "I do not favor giving $100,000,000 to a man who built up such a system," said Borah.

PARIS, Jan. 23—Herbert Hoover today flatly denied the charges made in the United States Senate during the Senate's battle over the $100,000,000 food bill that he was working in the interest of the American packing industry. "I received word of the Senate's accusation just at the same time I received notice that Swift & Co. had charged me with being instrumental in cutting down their profits by ten million dollars last year. I do not believe the packers would want a wide circle of such friends."

AMERICA WILL GET GERMAN SHIPS

By Robert J. Bender

PARIS, Jan. 23—The United States will get the use of the great north German Lloyd liners for the repatriation of American troops, it was learned today. (This refers to such liners in German ports. Those in the American ports were seized when the United States entered the war.) The Germans will be paid the usual scale for the use of these vessels. Their property right will not be affected and the vessels will return to them when peace is signed. (Announcement was made recently that Great Britain was paid at the rate of $50 for each American soldier transported to France).

WILSON TO COME HOME FEBRUARY 15th

LONDON, Jan. 23—A Central News dispatch from Paris today said it has been definitely learned that President Wilson will return to America on February 15.

This is the day generally agreed upon in unofficial advices.

DIVIDED ON RUSSIAN RECOGNITION

PARIS, Jan. 23—Paris newspapers today took widely different views of the action of the supreme war council in according partial recognition to the Russian Soviet government. "President Wilson's idea was great and bold. The future will prove whether it is practical and fruitful. It will bring great joy to the Socialists and Democrats of the world when they read Wilson's proposal," the Humanite declared. (This paper exclusively published the Foreign Secretary's flat refusal of the Allies' proposal to recognize the Bolsheviks.) "It is especially useful to the League of Nations," another newspaper declared.

By Webb Miller

American headquarters in Germany, Jan. 23—The American flag has been submitted to insult. Coblenz dealers have been found to sell watch fobs made of iron crossed with a replica of the American flag. The American officers have confiscated all of this stock and are seeking the manufacturer. All retailers have been arrested. A wide spread rumor throughout Germany in the occupied territory is to the effect that Coblenz girls who fraternized with American troops were forced to polish their shoes. It has developed that a German had opened a shoe shining parlor and employed girls. Inasmuch as there are no public shoe shining parlors in Europe the town-people believed the girls were being punished.

To supply parts which were missing from artillery accepted as part of the quota under the armistice terms the British government has ordered the Kiupp works to supply the parts.

RED CROSS SMOKE SAVED HIS LIFE

There's a private in the 165th Infantry—the old 69th of New York—who claims that his life was saved by a box of cigarettes, provided by the American Red Cross. He is Edgar McGee, of Company L, an Indian whose home is Williston, Oklahoma, and who has attended Armstrong Academy and Haskell Institute.

"I know a little about shells and more about cigarettes," said Private McGee, as he sat up in bed at American Red Cross military hospital No. 5, in Paris, smoking one of a never-ending chain of tree smokes. "And at that, I had fifty five days of shell-fire. We helped put the Prussian Guards out of the little old town of St. Georges you know, and we had to do it with the bayonet."

"Here's where my life and the Red Cross cigarettes come in. I had been sent back to get a box of cigarettes that the Red Cross had given us and was returning with the box on my right shoulder when a shell dropped fifteen feet from me. The first thing I knew there were cigarettes all over the landscape, with me in the middle of them. One piece of shell that would have got my head if it hadn't hit the box, damaged the cigarettes badly. A second piece caught me in the left hip. The shell fell to the right of me and how a piece ever got around to hit me on the left side I haven't yet been able to figure out. But no matter how it did I am certainly strong for the Red Cross."

WHAT A DISTRICT NURSE IS DOING IN OTHER SECTIONS

The experimental stage of the usefulness and practicability of a district nurse is past. The benefits accruing therefrom are being demonstrated on every hand.

Through the efforts of the Woman Club of Bradford a District Nurse has been placed in the school of the city with most gratifying results.

In Meadville, practical demonstration of the use and value of children of the pre-school age are given to the parents.

Seneca County has held all available married nurses and secured their cooperation in the conduct of Child Welfare station in different cities and towns.

Lancaster county has held a conference of Child Welfare board members.

RATIFICATION OF DRY AMENDMENT BEGUN

HARRISBURG, PA., Jan. 22—The legislature took initial steps toward definite action on the national prohibition amendment here today.

Representative Vukerman, of Allegheny, introduced a bill in the house ratifying the amendment, while the secretary of the commonwealth presented a certified copy of the amendment before the senate. Definite action will likely be taken on the matter at the opening of the session next week. In the dry tank, there is an atmosphere of optimism. The dry leaders are urging immediate action and feel confident now that the required number of states have already ratified the amendment there is no other avenue open to the legislature of Pennsylvania.

Bills by the score followed the announcement of the standing senate committees. Among the most important bills was one introduced by Senator Eyre, of Chester, providing for the abolition of the non-partisan election of state judges. Another bill pertaining to election changes was introduced by the same senator and provided for return of party conventions for the selection of candidates for state and national offices.

A bill providing for the establishment of a state boxing commission and limited contests to ten rounds was introduced by Senator Crow, of Fayette county.

Senator Horace Shantz, of Lehigh, introduced a bill providing for monthly instalments of liquor licenses in view of the fact that the war time prohibition will become effective July 1.

A group of women at a luncheon following this a health and Child Welfare exhibit of a week's duration was held in Lancaster addressed by prominent physicians. A small Child's Wellfare exhibit easily portable was then secured and has been sent to the rural districts from school to school, accompanied by volunteer women to interpret it at the time and distribute literature on the subject.

It is to be given at the High School Auditorium on the subject of Child Welfare and Child Welfare. The exhibit was held on Tuesday evening January twenty.

VIVID DESCRIPTION OF WAR'S HORRORS

First Lieutenant Daniel K. ("Ted") Flynn has written another of his interesting letters to his mother. This message was written before Christmas. Lieutenant Flynn writes from a base hospital in France and is convalescent after a brief illness of influenza.

Meanwhile the regiment with which he served "through thick and thin, through rain and snow and sunshine" is marching into the land of the vanquished Hun.

The letter follows:

Dearest Mother:

I have about recovered from my attack of the "flu" and since being here in the hospital many wonderful things have happened the most wonderful of all being victory. Pershing's first army, in which we have played our humble part, was like a huge sledge against the Hun and drove him back in wild and hopeless disorder.

Seems Like a Miracle

It seems impossible that such a miracle could have happened. Of course we knew that we were punishing the Germans in terrible fashion. Nothing has been seen since the war began like the terrific cannon fire the Allies have been using. Nothing could live in its path. Since July 18th there has been no rest for the Hun. He has been smashed and hammered until his shattered legion was in a state of chaos, without plan or organization left.

One German officer taken by us volunteered the information that "There is no use of fighting against the Americans. They do not know when to quit and we have never seen such daring, such courage."

Thus we see the product of a free nation welded into soldiers in three or four months, with the unstinted praise of the supposedly greatest trained soldiers in the world. The reason for this is easily understood, for somehow or other the American soldier is an independent thinking machine.

Individuality Counts Here

Here, for instance, is a corporal in the front line. He spots a machine gun manned by Germans, two hundred yards out in front—say behind a clump of bushes. He doesn't report this to his lieutenant, but taking two or three men with him he will crawl out like a snake on his belly and the first thing the German knows is that he is surrounded and captured.

There are many instances of this all along our front line.

I do not know when we sail for that sweetest of all places—home—but I know the day will be a glorious one. My regiment is tramping over hill and dale to Germany. I am exceedingly sorry not to be with them. It is the very first time I have been away since February, through thick and thin, through rain and snow and sunshine, always somewhere trying to do my little part in the game and now to have them march away with victory ours is not the happiest thought in the world.

Affraid to Hope in Line

We all feel now that we have a good opportunity of seeing home again but up in the line we were afraid to hope for all around us men were dying and no one knew but that the wine of the next oncoming shell was his own death-knell-sounding. Now that it is over and we are relaxed and becoming normal humans, to look back on the past months is to shudder and to wonder if you are really living or if you were "bumped off" with so many you knew in those black, dreary weeks of bloodshed.

I know that no one could have gotten through without God's guiding hand, for death and destruction stalked everywhere.

Miles back of the front line great shells splashed their deadly splinters along the beautiful French roads, often-times catching columns of troops coming forward to battle, scattering and killing many of them. Always at night these roads were shelled by the Hun. Sometimes the shells would land in the midst of a long train of motor trucks, knocking them into a thousand pieces. Marching on in the night we would sometimes hear the drone of an airplane, the noise coming with time.

Suddenly the plane is apparent, just overhead. (The German planes have a distinct hum quite easily distinguished from the hum of all the Allied motors.) Our muscles and nerves are drawn tense—not a sound is heard in the column of men, save the plodding of very feet on the road.

Suddenly there is a tremendous crash. The very world reels and rocks from the concussion. Then another bomb is let loose and the deafening boom reaches for his place.

CLEARFIELD WINTERS A COMPARISON

We suppose it is alright for our Clearfield people to go to Florida to spend the winter and as they are all spending their own money to do so, it is not up to any of us poor devil newspaper scribes to care a hoot about it. At the same time we are forced to get a word or two anyhow. The fellow who went to Florida this year has nothing on those of us who are lucky enough or poor enough to have to stay at home. We certainly have experienced balmy sunny weather thus far, and to go Florida one better we had a touch or two of zero to add a dash of paprika to existence where you can ordinarily count on every kind of weather every fifteen minutes, especially when the weather man is out of sorts.

But to get back to the present mild winter. Our Celtic friend Tim Minahan showed us a fine big caterpillar he found quietly strolling down Market street yesterday enjoying the afternoon sun.

We had a letter from John E. Rouzeau, of Girard township this morning in which he comments on the extraordinary winter weather and said he was out in the woods yesterday gathering chestnuts. He said he believed that was the first time in half year that chestnuts were gathered on January 22nd, in Clearfield county.

Last year's record was just the opposite as the following will show.

One year ago on Monday the thermometer registered 15 degrees below, while one year ago Tuesday it was 5 below and a year ago yesterday it was zero. The weather moderated somewhat after this period and it started in to snow. On January 28th the railroads of the country were completely blocked for over a day. This is greatly in contrast to the weather of the past three or four days, when the sun has been shining brightly, causing thermometers to range around 40 and 45 degrees, mosquitoes are buzzing around and beds are swelling.

During last winter there were 45 days on which the thermometer in the morning registered below zero. There have been some below zero mornings this winter, but there has not been one real cold spell. This is probably the annual January thaw that is being experienced at the present time, but there is nothing to show, except the roads, and they were not badly frozen. February generally furnishes some very cold weather and it is probable that there will be a cold snap or two during that month. But it is certain that this section is not going to experience a whole lot of winter weather.

It was just one year ago on Monday that fuelless Mondays were inaugurated and continued for several weeks.

MRS. WILLIAM MICHAELS

Mrs. William Michaels died at her home in Bloom township at the age of 36 years, of pneumonia following the influenza. She was buried in Greenville cemetery on Tuesday along with her twin babies which died at birth. Rev. Clever officiated. She leaves to mourn her death a husband and seven children. Also four step children, three brothers and three sisters. The Michaels home is a and one as the seven children are afflicted with the influenza.

Dangerous to Morale

Nothing is so dangerous to the morale of troops as air raids. You feel, and you are, so utterly helpless against them.

Yes we are thankful it is all over with. We often say that hell could hold no terror for the men who have been here.

I want you all to come and meet me, for New York will go wild when the 165th infantry marches up Fifth avenue and our old treasured flag again feels the throbs of the millions that always line the street when it passes.

Before I close I want to say that this hospital in which I have been in charge of a California unit. I have never been treated better. Of course, to the Red Cross. My best wishes will always be with it and I will ever remember the magnificent work the Red Cross has done for us all.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas.

Pennsylvania is almost alone among all of the States in that it levies no tax for State purposes upon real estate, but leaves that handiest source of public income intact for the needs of its municipal subdivisions. It is to be hoped that this condition may never be disturbed, as realty, especially as represented by our farms and homes, already bear more than its share of the burdens of taxation. Probably the most equitable tax, considering all of things, is the income tax, and I should favor the imposition of a light levy upon personal and corporate incomes as a means of piecing out the revenues of the State, were it not for the limitations in our present constitution which would prevent the grading of such taxes, or the exemption of small incomes. This same provision prevents the equitable operation of the present inheritance tax. An amendment to the constitution is now before the Legislature which will permit of the classification and grading of subjects of taxation, and, if it should be favorably acted upon and then approved by the electors, important changes may be made in our tax laws by the next Legislature.

It would seem that the most available source of revenue now in sight is to be found in a change in the law which would provide for a return to the State of a portion of the personal property tax. Until a few years ago the State directed the collection of this tax and a percentage of the total sum received by the county treasurers was paid into the State Treasury. Generous Legislatures at various times when there were ample balances in the State Treasury, gave increasing shares of this tax to the counties and finally wiped out the State's share in it altogether, although it is still billed as a State tax. In many of the counties little effort is made to assess or collect this tax, and carelessness in filing returns and in making payments is tolerated. If the State, through the Auditor General's office, should be authorized to collect this large item of revenue in the same manner that corporation and other State taxes are collected, with the provision that one-half of the amount realized should belong to the State and the other half to the counties, the State's income would be materially increased. Through the operation of a thorough system of collection the counties should receive as much or almost as much as they now gain from this direction. This plan, with the additional revenue, which should come to us this year from the gross earnings tax upon certain of our corporations, from the inheritance taxes and from an increase in the automobile license, together with the particularly efficient management of the Department of the Auditor General, should provide the revenue that we shall be likely to need for the present.

The development of our public activities has been so rapid since the construction of our present form of government, that our administrative departments have been attached to the general frame without much regard to symmetrical structure or efficient organization. Many of these departments overlap one another in their supposed functions, with the result that there is a lack of system and co-ordination and a duplication of effort which is extravagant and uneconomical. There is a great deal of lost motion in the operation of the State government and there is great opportunity for saving money and getting better results by consolidating and reorganizing some of the departments. I have some plans in mind the details of which will be communicated to the Legislature when a complete study has been made. Among those departments which I have particularly in mind are the Agricultural Department, which should be made more direct in its administration and brought closer to the people. Food production is going to be a more important element in our public affairs in the next few years than it has ever been, and Pennsylvania, with the best markets in the world, is fortunately also one of the most favored agricultural States and should meet more completely its own requirements. There is a wonderful field for helpful co-operation with our farmers.

The Forestry, Game, Fisheries and Water Supply Departments, with activities naturally co-related, should be combined into

The Pneumonia of INFLUENZA

Deadly Pneumonia Often Follows Common Chest Cough

This pneumonia, which is a very severe and often fatal disease, is caused by a virus which enters the body through the nose or mouth. It is often preceded by a common chest cough, which is usually treated with a cough syrup. However, if the cough is not treated properly, it can lead to pneumonia. It is important to seek medical attention if you have a persistent cough, especially if it is accompanied by fever, chills, and difficulty breathing.

IMPORTANT—In the event of a pneumonia epidemic, it is essential that you take immediate action. This can be done by using a special pneumonia vaccine, which is available from the Clearfield National Bank. This vaccine is highly effective in preventing pneumonia and is recommended for all who are in the Clearfield district.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God in his wise providence to remove from our midst, one of our worthy brother, Nestor C. Billette, who has made the Supreme sacrifice on the Battlefield of France, in defence of Democracy and Justice; and whereas, the intimate relations held with him in the faithful discharge of his duties as a member of Frenchville Grange No. 1534. Therefore resolved, that the ability which he has exercised in aiding in our Grange work by service contributions and punctual attendance shall be held in fond remembrance. Resolved, that although with deep sympathy for the bereaved relatives of the deceased, we regret our great loss, we have the satisfaction to know that Frenchville Grange No. 1534 has one member on the Honor Roll, who died in support of the Stars and Stripes the flag that sends a thrill of pride in every loyal American whose eyes colors are unfurled.

Resolved, that in remembrance of our brother we dedicate our hearts and lives to the service of our country, and that these resolutions be read upon our minutes and a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

one Department of Conservation, with each of the bureaus representing the present departments co-ordinating and co-operating under direct control.

The Department of State Police should be a real crime preventing and criminal detecting agency, with well-equipped headquarters at the capital, which would have complete records of all felonies, and a force of experts who could be called to the assistance of the peace officers of every county in the State. There is little co-operation between the counties in police matters and, with the incomplete police organization and changing officials in many of the counties, there is no continuing authority charged with the apprehension of criminals and the prevention of crime. The Department of State Police should include the other police or corrective agencies of the State which do not require an especially technical force, and the Fire Marshall's work might well be merged with it. I also believe that the game and fish protective force should be a part of the State Constabulary and that men should be selected for this work who could qualify for service in the police in time of necessity.

The Department of Health, although it is already a very cumbersome organization and might be simplified, should include the State Quarantine Service, if, indeed, this service is necessary in view of the provisions of the Federal Government for the same purpose.

AN IMPORTANT WORK

Perhaps in no department of the State government has there been a greater increase in work and expense than in the Department of Labor and Industry. There appears to be much confusion, much duplication of effort and much that is superfluous and unnecessary in this department. Not that I would minimize its importance, but I feel that there is much that can be dispensed with here which would give an opportunity for increasing its work in lines of greater importance. For instance, I believe the Commissioner of Labor and Industry should have broader powers in relation to housing problems. Our larger communities can take care of themselves in these matters, but throughout the State here are places where people are living in frightfully unsanitary homes, surrounded by conditions which make for bad health and bad citizenship. Especially is this true in some industrial settlements where families are compelled, in order to be near their employment, to live in places which are unfit for human habitation. We ought to have the power to help in this very important matter.

This department should also be able to give attention more completely to helping our foreign-born. Twenty per cent. of foreign immigration comes to Pennsylvania. When we entered the war, people who did not know them looked on this great body of foreign-born people as a menace. Their mistake is now apparent, for we have found in the hearts of the foreign-born an unselfish depth of patriotism, keen appreciation of the principles involved in the war and a great eagerness to take this first opportunity to prove their adoption to their adopted country. Their sons have gone in great numbers into the army and navy. They have organized among themselves and bought Liberty Bonds in surprising amounts, and in mines, mills and factory, they have worked patriotically and faithfully in war industries. As an example of patriotic work they have done throughout the Commonwealth, I may cite the fact that twenty different races organized Philadelphia and took sixty millions of Third and Fourth Liberty Bonds. We, who are native-born, have been slow to recognize the great patriotic and industrial asset Pennsylvania has in her foreign-born people. Without them, we could not have developed our resources. They have acquired homes, their children fill our public schools, their industry, their thrift, their devotion to American principles, when properly led, unite to make them a great asset in the future of our State. We propose, during this administration, that the State of Pennsylvania shall get into closer touch with its foreign-born, that these people may realize that the State is their friend, that they are a part of it, and that it cherishes them and will protect them from those who would impose upon them or exploit them.

OUR CITY PROBLEMS

Our greatest city needs assistance in the way of developing and regulating legislation. Many minds are now working upon her problem and many divergent views are expressed. There seems to be general agreement, however, upon the essential points of a greater degree of home rule within the limitations of the present constitution, a better fiscal policy, a reduced legislative session, the removal of the forces of public safety from partisan politics. It is to be hoped that the various elements in the situation may get together and that Philadelphia may secure some much-needed changes in her administrative organization.

The mine-cave situation in Scranton and thereabouts is still menacing and if an effective and satisfactory agreement cannot be reached that will protect this splendid city and relieve her inhabitants from the blight of this incubus upon the development of their community, the power of the State must not be withheld in remedying an intolerable situation.

Fortunate in having access to the three principal systems of water-borne commerce, Pennsylvania has not been so forward-looking as she might have been in laying plans for the development of her ports on the Delaware, her lake harbor at Erie and her outlet in the Pittsburgh district to the Mississippi Valley. May we not take some definite steps to assist in making practical improvements in all of these directions? With the demands of the national government upon our taxing powers, however, these enterprises seem more than ever to be rightfully a concern of the nation.

Philadelphia draws much of her trade and finds an outlet for her increasing population in the section of the State of New Jersey close at hand. It is remarkable that a bridge or tunnel has not long since connected the great city with the environs separated from it by a river but one-half mile wide. The State of New Jersey has authorized a participation in the building of a bridge and has provided a method for raising the necessary funds to finance one-half of the cost. We should meet this situation promptly and, in conjunction with the city of Philadelphia, should get ready to join in the undertaking. We can spare enough out of our current revenues to bear the State's proportion in what might be made a great memorial structure in honor of our brave soldiers and sailors.

A STATE ART JURY

There will undoubtedly be a general movement in our communities to erect permanent memorials to our heroes of the war. I trust that these memorials may be useful and beautiful. Many of the monuments which have been built at our county seats and elsewhere in commemoration of the valorous deeds of the defenders of the Union are inartistic and inappropriate. We ought to take steps now to prevent a repetition of this mistake. An Art Commission to which should be submitted designs for monuments and public structures, including bridges and school houses, would be a desirable addition to our organization, and should raise the whole tone of public architecture in Pennsylvania. It costs no more to have good-looking structures in our public places and the effect upon the community of artistic and well-designed buildings and memorials must be measurably good.

A COUNCIL OF PUBLIC WELFARE

The Council of National Defense and Committee of Public Safety should be continued in a modified form to help in meeting

the problems of peace. The Council of National Defense won the recommendation of the officials at Washington and was ranked as the best and most efficient organization of the kind in the whole country. It has developed and given to the State many useful agencies and has brought into public life many citizens who will add greatly to our force of trained public servants. These men and women should not be allowed to become disorganized and their usefulness lost to the State. The body should be continued as a Council of Public Welfare, and some of the lines of duty which it has been handling as war measures should be continued as a Council of Public Welfare, and some of the lines of duty which it has been handling as war measures should be continued as serviceable adjuncts to the State government in times of peace. Certain of the agricultural, educational and conservation plans of the Council should be continued and enlarged, and the excellent system of volunteer police which has brought a fine body of citizens into touch with the authorities throughout the State, should be provided for as a permanent body.

MILITARY REORGANIZATION

In the absence of definite action by the United States Government for the re-establishment and reorganization of the army, it is difficult to plan for the military establishment of the State. The Pennsylvania Reserve Militia, however, is well organized and well-equipped and is a credit to the State, its officers and its membership. This organization should be strengthened and merged with the National Guard when we come to re-establish that organization. The wonderful record of our Pennsylvania National Guard units in the greatest battles in history, is source of pride to every citizen of the State. The reorganization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania must be undertaken as early as possible and the splendid traditions of that historic force preserved for the glory of the State. Our discharged soldiers and former guardsmen must be invited to return to the service and every effort made to again build up our force of trained citizen soldiery.

BAD COUGH FOR SIX YEARS. WOULD CATCH COLD EASILY

Mr. Townsend tried all kinds of treatments. Finally found the right one.

"For six years I had a bad cough, caused by catarrh. When I would catch cold, I would cough all night. I tried all kinds of medicine, and spent one winter in Florida, but my cough didn't get any better.

"My wife urged me to try Milks Emulsion. I bought a bottle to please her. The result was, after taking a few bottles, my cough stopped and my catarrh is a great deal better. I very seldom cough even once at night now. Milks Emulsion has done wonders for me."

—B. E. Townsend, 1607 Jackson St., Muncie, Ind.

The person who catches cold easily is seldom well. Catarrh, coughs and other ailments seem to be a constant. Such trouble is not remedied by local treatments. The cause is usually deep seated. The surest way to obtain quick and positive relief is to build up and strengthen the whole system.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and purgatives. It promotes appetite and quickens the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to run-down nervous people, and it has produced amazing results in many cases of asthma, chronic bronchitis, and tuberculosis of the lungs. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. A truly wonderful medicine for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold and guaranteed by Stewart's Drug Store.

Patterson Shoff, a former local boy who has just been discharged from the army, is visiting Clearfield friends at present. He is employed in Johnston.

CHARLES KINGSLEY CENTENARY

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The memory of Charles Kingsley, the preacher-novelist, who died on this date in 1875, is to be signally honored next June, on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of his birth. To the general public the name of Kingsley is perhaps best known as that of the author of "Westward Ho!" But in his day he was celebrated as a preacher of socialistic doctrine and an ardent advocate of social reforms, many of which have since become accomplished facts.

Kingsley was born in Devonshire and was the son of a country parson. He is said to have preached his first sermon when he was four years old, and his mother kept it as a curiosity. In this young Charles said:

"Nobody can tell how the devil can be chained in hell. If humanity, honesty and good religion fade we can to a certainty get them back by being good again. Religion is reading good books, doing good actions and not telling lies and not speaking evil and not calling your brother a fool."

Six months after graduating at Cambridge Kingsley was settled as a parson at Eversley, which place continued to be his home during the remainder of his life. In working at Eversley Mr. Kingsley began to realize the need of a Christian socialism in England. With this decision he took his place in English life as a parson, a politician, an author and a strenuous worker to save souls.

He wrote for the working man under the title of "Parson Lot," and told him that he must free himself from his own wicked inclinations before he could pass from under the cruel power of bad social conditions. His strongest stories dealing with the subject of socialism in its highest sense are "Yeast" and "Alton Locke."

Kingsley was made canon of Westminster shortly before his death, and is buried in the famous abbey. Once when a friend wished him a long life Kingsley said: "Ask for me anything but that. Let us live hard, work hard, go a good pace and get to our journey's end as soon as possible."

The eldest son of the author had emigrated to America and had become successful as an engineer in Colorado. In his later years Charles Kingsley crossed the Atlantic to visit his son and to see the country. He was worn and weary from overwork and the strain of his literary labors, so that his journey was almost too much for him. He was well received in the United States and always cherished a high regard for that country and its people.

On the side of a range of hills and overlooking Biddeford Bay now stands the town of "Westward Ho" which was named for Kingsley's book that

The evangelistic meeting at the Baptist church last evening was about the strongest and best attended session of the series and the effect of Rev. Smith's "old time gospel" sermons is reaching every class of society in our community. The Reverend gentleman is a finished orator and is striking sledge-hammer blows against the sin of careless living in his nightly sermons.

He took for his subject last night "The Lost Christ." It was a real message to backsliders and Rev. Smith left nothing to the imagination of his hearers. He was listened to with rapt attention and his message is bound to bear good fruit.

Everybody is invited to these nightly services.

Mrs. A. C. Tubbs entertained B. J. Hummel's Sunday school class of which she is a member, at her home in the East End on January 21. It being Mr. Tubbs birthday, she had the ladies bring their husbands to celebrate the evening. Delicious refreshments were served.
